

STUDENT CENTRIC METHODS

Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences.

The University constantly strives to reinvent its teaching-learning processes in light of the emerging challenges and opportunities in the external environment. The focus is not only on developing the academic skills of the Students but on developing them as confident, socially responsible citizens, who can adequately cope with the problems of the future.

The specific student centric methodologies adopted at IIS (deemed to be University) to develop a lifelong interest and motivation to learn and understand are as follows:

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

Learning that is considered "experiential" contains all the following elements: Internship, Simulation, Competitions, CSR, Extension Activities, Movie screening etc. This helps in making the students participate in their own learning, making decisions and being accountable for their own decisions.

Internships: Students of the Masters Programme, the integrated B.A. /B.Sc./B.Sc. B.Ed. Programme and certain Career Oriented Skill Development courses have to undergo a mandatory internship as part of their curriculum (as sample 2019-20).

PROBLEM SOLVING METHODOLOGIES

Students face numerous challenges when they enter a world marked by rapid changes. Thus, to encourage the students to be innovative and be able to find the best solutions to the problems that they might have never experienced before, the University, adopts problem solving methodologies in teaching –learning process such as guest lectures, research projects, case studies , simulation activities and COSD courses. It helps the student to take a holistic approach to problems involving complex and ambiguous systems and to employ creative problem solving skills.
